SYMPOSIUM: “From Racial Polarization to Black Liberation”

Prof. Dr. Sieglinde Lemke and Luvena Kopp, M.A. are the organizers of a symposium which looks into the current Black movement, its repercussions and its potential to further social transformation.

Guest speakers will be Priscilla Layne, Ph.D. (University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill), Dr. Nicole Hirschfelder (University of Tübingen), and Courtney Moffett-Bateau, M.A. (University of Bremen).

Black Lives Matter has become the rallying cry of the largest protest movement in U.S. history. As people from various nations and races have joined its protests, the movement has become an indispensable force of social change. This comes at a time of extreme polarization, propelled by increasing political partisanship, wherein rising levels of violence, animosity, and contempt towards members of the other group exacerbate divisions in U.S. society. The recent upsurge of Black Lives Matter, in an era of COVID, exposes long-standing racial as well as economic polarization. Expediting the structures of neoliberal capitalism, the pandemic reinforces the precarity of the many while increasing profits for the few. As the pandemic converges with a tradition of racist police brutality, Black lives are the main victims of a dual crisis.

The resurgence of the Black Lives Matter movement links the struggle for Black liberation to a broader struggle for systemic change. “Black liberation,” Keeanga-Yamahtta Taylor reminds us in From #BlackLivesMatter to Black Liberation, “is bound up with the project of human liberation and social transformation.”

When? February 3, 2021 | 3 – 5 p.m.

These courses target mostly students of philology, but can also be taken within the framework of other study programs e.g. in the supplementary/interdisciplinary area. All courses can be taken for ECTS credits. Individual departments decide on the eligibility of the courses, the EPICUR Team Freiburg can provide administrative support where needed.

Survey:

EPICUR lives through the participation of its students. EPICUR not only seeks to enable Future EPICUR students are to learn a European language, but also to raise interest in the languages of our European partners with the help of purpose-driven and attractive offers. With this in mind, our partner, the University of Strasbourg, has launched a large survey at all of our eight partner universities. He sees ghosts, he sees the monster moving underneath his Aunt Georgina's skin, he sees the creature that comes out of his bedroom wall and creepily wants to suck his toes. He also still hears his father in his head, and other voices too. Jared can't ignore his true nature any longer. And neither can anyone else he loves.

READING GAMES: Night in the Woods (2017)

Reading Games (as in "we are reading games," not as if a series of gamified reading sessions) is a book club for video games instead of books.

The club meets (currently online) on a monthly basis, to talk about selected games, from an interdisciplinary perspective, including Cultural Studies and literary approaches. In order to join, you don't have to have any level of knowledge about video games, or define yourself as a "gamer." That term is becoming as meaningful as a term like "movie-goer," in today's world, where digital games are everywhere as cultural products.

This session, the club will discuss Night in the Woods (2017). You are expected to come prepared, i.e. play the game, and/or watch a video of someone else who is playing it for you.
